In particular, the specification relates to collaboration system that provides a collaborative search capability over shared workspaces. Collaborative search refers to the use of shared spaces in which individual members of a group may contribute information or ideas and then search for the best information or ideas, based on contributions from others within the group. Some collaborative search systems provide collaborative search capabilities using a method that includes identifying keywords by individuals within a group, and then searching for documents based on keywords and comparing the results. However, with this method, the number of returned documents depends upon the number of documents shared by the group members, and in some cases the responses may not provide the best results. For example, if a member within a group shares a large number of documents and returns the most frequently used documents, the next members of the group may not have a high

I was able to have a great time with Otakon guests and potential contacts. I'm going to list for all the Otakon attendees (probably more than most, but that's fine) the people I spoke to about my process of creating my Otakon concept art, the work I was asking for, and things I was bringing to fans. (I made some of this concept art at the convention prior to the end of the show. See the backgrounds for the various characters I was working on in the linked images.) I want to thank all the people who took the time to talk to me and to show me work from their projects. I was amazed by the artists I met, and I was able to pick up a few things I hadn't thought of going in. I also want to thank Ian Wolfe, Isaac Arcement, Arin Hanson, and Scott Altman for talking with me about my project. I'm honored that they took the time to talk to me. Otakon Guests Krystal and RyoheiKazama at the Otakon FanimeCon Kids Zone. I'm friends with Krystal, but I don't know the Ryohei. He's the blue-eyed guy with the hair. Krystal seems like a very talented artist. Eddi (Cedric) Trejo (Redeye)Bazz. He's worked on Darkstalkers 3. Jounyah (Paula) Leoutana (John) Inoue (Greenstep)Ted Lepore. Everyone should know who Greenstep is. He was in Alone in the Dark, he's on various Dreamcast games. I think all the names were obvious to most Otakon attendees. 3da54e8ca3
